Administratively, the district has 5 divisions, 27 wards and 121 villages, 543 hamlets and 63,293 households.

Physical features and respective climate and Topography:

Two distinctive features namely The Eastern Highlands and The Mufindi Plateau characterize the Mufindi District Council.

1.1.3 The Eastern Highlands

The highlands lie at an altitude of 1,700 – 2,200 above sea levels. The feature ranges from southwest to the eastern part of Udzungwa mountain ranges, which is the part of the Eastern Arc Mountains and the Kihansi Dam and its Catchments. The mean annual rainfall ranges between 1200-1600mm.

The average precipitation is 1400mm per annum whereby the east and south are the wetter parts while the west is much drier. Temperatures are often below 15oC, the mean monthly is 18.4oC (maxima-November and February) and the minima is 13.2oC (July). The soil is generally red clay of moderate fertility with dark top soil having high organic matter content. Much of the land is at risk of erosion due to steep slopes of over 30% gradient. Major Economic activities are Agriculture and specific crops are tea, coffee, pyrethrum, wheat, round potatoes and temperate fruits like peas, peaches and plums. Livestock keeping is also practiced in a small scale.

Topography is typified by its steep topography; mostly the land form is steeply dissected with slops of more than 30 percent gradient, often as steeps as 50%. Flatter top slops of 2-8% and 8-16% gradient comprise an average of about 10 % of this land unit. The drainage pattern is very dense with infield flat bottom lands generally less than 20 mm width. Vegetation includes low/shrub land and scattered forests.

1.1.4 The Mufindi Plateau

It is extensive and uniform covering halfway of Iringa rural through Mafinga up to Makambako. Its altitude ranges from 1700-2000m. above sea level. The average mean annual rainfall is 950mm. In the eastern part of the plateau the annual rainfall is slightly higher than 950mm. The average evapotranspiration is 1300mm per annum, where as the maximum temperature is 18.3oC and the minimum is 13.1oC.

Topography of Mufindi plateau is very extensive and uniform plateau extending from half way Iringa – Mafinga up to Makambako. Most of this land unit is undulating with slopes of 2-8%. Scattered areas and slopes towards drainage lines are steeper with slopes of up to 20% gradient. The drainage system is infield with moderately wide bottom lands. Also incised drainage occurs in areas where topography is steeper than general. Cultivated land is dominant. Miombo wood lands are common on the hill slopes in the eastern parts, while thicket vegetation and shrubs/grassland are more common in the western parts.

Mufindi District has one rainfall season starting from early November and ends up on May. Rainfall is critical for agricultural production which is the mainstay of the Mufindi district's economy and livelihood.
